

The luxury of choice

... awaits you on Wallberg mountain and in the surrounding area. Regardless of whether you are in the mood for "simply" walking up the 100 meters in elevation gain between the top of the cable car station and the mountain peak or whether you are looking for a real challenge, the hiking area from Risserkogel to Setzberg offers you endless possibilities. The only thing limiting you is the time at your disposal.

Sledding and free riding with a view of the Tegernsee lake

In winter, Wallberg entices with one of Germany's longest sledding runs. The exciting run, which takes sledders down to the valley whooping with joy, is over 6 kilometres long.

Ski mountaineers and powder snow enthusiasts will get their money's worth on the ungroomed ski run. The black run and former FIS run that takes you down the Erlenhang and Glaslhang slopes has become an insider tip for free riders and powder snow enthusiasts. The 3.2-kilometer run is, however, definitely only recommended for extremely good skiers and snowboarders.

Natalie Geisenberger, winner of two Olympic medals in luge and reigning world champion, is a welcome and frequently seen guest at Wallberg mountain. The neighbouring Spitzingsee-Tegernsee ski area is also well worth a visit for both skiers and snowboarders.
